Cumbersome and cluttered

Many organizations need effective solutions for time registration and access control. But instead, they manually track these things or use classic, laborious, and error-prone Excel sheets. As a result, accuracy is an issue, and there is more risk of people getting unauthorized access, and the process from time registration to payroll takes too long.

Other organizations use several solutions for time registration, employee registration, and access control that must be adequately integrated. This is at the expense of the overview and requires a lot of additional work.

Time registration and access control in one

The integration between TimeTrack and EasySecure offers a solution for companies dealing with the abovementioned problem. They will have access to proven systems for both time and hour registration and access control in one solution. The integration pairs TimeTrack's software with powerful hardware and uses biometric control to allow people access to a construction site or building.

Thanks to the cooperation between TimeTrack and EasySecure, you benefit from various advantages:

- Fast and accurate time registration. You can immediately see how many and which hours someone works, whether the hours worked match the planning, and when people take breaks or work overtime. Then, you can transfer all that information quickly and effortlessly to the payroll.

- You always know who is in a building or on a construction site.

- Know when people arrive and leave, breaks, overtime, and extra pay related to holiday allowances; with the EasySecure-TimeTrack combination, you always have that information clearly in mind.
